

The Monroe Advertiser, Georgia, January 7, 1926

A. J. ZELLNER PASSES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mr. Andrew J. Zellner, 81, confederate veteran, and member of one of the oldest and most prominent Monroe county families, died Sunday noon at his residence in Forsyth after an illness of many months. His father was Judge Ben Zellner, prominent figure in the early history of the county. Mr. Zellner was a sturdy character and an esteemed citizen. He was a member of the Primitive Baptist church, whose pastor, Elder W.W. Childs, of Yatesville, assisted by Rev. R. L. Bivins, of Macon, conducted the funeral at the Baptist church at one o'clock Monday afternoon. He is survived by his third wife, who was Miss Carrie Powers, two daughters, Mrs. A. T. Persons, Yatesville; Mrs. J. J. Ambrose, Dallas, Tex.; two sons, B. H. Zellner and R. O. Zellner, both of Forsyth, and three sisters, Mrs. W. A. Worsham, Culloden; Mrs. N. R. Chambliss, Macon; Mrs. Lillian Shipp, Cordele; two brothers, Wm. Zellner, of Forsyth and Wiley Zellner of Los Angeles, Cal. Interment was in the family burial ground.

The above is copied exactly (including spelling, punctuation, and capitalization errors) as it appeared in The Monroe Advertiser on January 7, 1926. It should be noted that the third Mrs. Zellner was the former Carrie (Mary Caroline) POWELL, instead of "Powers" as listed in the obituary.